ABSTRACT:
On August 7, 2012, Flickers celebrates its 30th Anniversary Year and kicks-off its 16th annual Rhode Island International Film Festival (RIIFF) in Providence, RI. This week-long celebration of independent cinema and film arts is New England’s largest film festival and only Academy Award (i.e. “Oscars”) qualifying event. Out of the 7,000-plus film festivals worldwide, only 75 of them share this distinction. In addition to film screenings, the festival will feature the return of the RI Film Forum—geared to be a region-wide educational workshop on bringing film production to the Ocean State—award ceremonies, filmmaker symposia, the annual ScriptBiz Screenwriting Workshop, a walking tour of film locations in Providence, and networking events. For more information about the festival, please visit www.rifilmfest.org.

( PROVIDENCE/NEWPORT, RI • July 18, 2012 ) — With filmmakers expected to arrive from across the globe, the FLICKERS: Rhode Island International Film Festival (RIIFF) kicks off its 16th annual event August 7–12th and celebrates the 30th Anniversary of its non-profit creator, Flickers. Over 200 feature length, documentary and short films — from 51 countries, and 32 states in the United States - will be screened over a six-day period at locations throughout the state of Rhode Island. Films have been selected from a record entry base of 4,700 submissions. The Festival will present 28 World Premieres and 26 North American/United States Premieres.

RIIFF is a magnet for those who’ve made short films because it is a qualifying event for the short film category of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. In 2011, five of the films that premiered at RIFF went on to receive Academy Award nominations, and two wins ("The Shore" directed by Terry George and “The Fantastic Flying Books of Mr. Morris Lessmore” directed by William Joyce.)

"This has been a tremendous year for the Festival,” said RIFF Executive Director George T. Marshall, "Not only have entries been up significantly over last year, but we are celebrating the 30th Anniversary of..."
Flickers. This allows us to look back at some of our older programming models and reintroduce them to new audiences. This year’s Festival will illustrate the range and scope of RIIFF, which I think will prove exciting for filmgoers. The festival’s goal has always been to recognize new and undiscovered talent and to be a welcoming refuge for filmmakers to present their work. For us, the filmmakers are our stars.”

From James Spione, director of the Oscar®-nominated documentary short film, “Incident in New Baghdad” came this email: “Thank you, RIIFF, for recognizing my film way back in August. Your award is what convinced me to make a qualifying run for the Oscar! xo JS.”

Bob Cowsill of “The Cowsills” wrote the Festival after last year’s World Premiere of Family Band: The Cowsills Story: "I know the festival is winding down today and I wanted to thank you personally for creating such a wonderful evening for my family at the Rhode Island Film Festival. You were amazing. We really appreciate the opportunity you presented to our family in accepting our documentary for your film festival and for the attention you personally gave the evening and everyone involved with it. Really a great personal touch to a great event."

Since RIIFF is one of only 75 film festivals worldwide that is accredited by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences (AMPAS) the Opening Night has become a crowd-pleasing “Salute to the Art of the Short Film.” Last year, more than 1,200 people attended the event. RIIFF has seen 27 films that premiered at the Festival receive Oscar® nominations with six (6) winning the Award; most of the films were part of the Opening Night program.

This year’s Opening Night Gala on Tuesday, August 7th at The Vets in Providence, RI keeps that tradition alive. Films to be screened include "ASAD," Directed by Bryan Buckley from South Africa; "Trotteur " Directed by Arnaud Brisebois and Francis Leclerc from the Province of Québec, Canada; “Pesaran-e-Buzkashi (Buzkashi Boys),” Directed by Sam French from Afghanistan; “Friend Request Pending” starring Judi Dench and directed by Chris Foggin, United Kingdom; “BRÛLEURS (Burners),” Directed by Farid BENTOUMI 2011, France; “Mannen fra isødet (The Devil's Ballroom), Directed by Henrik Martin K. Dahlsbakken, Greenland, Norway ; and “J'aurais pu être une pute (I could've been a hooker)” Directed by Baya Kasmi from France.

RIIFF has received national and international recognition. It was listed in the Providence Business News as one of the Top 25 year-round events in Rhode Island. The Boston Globe’s Newenglandtravel.com named RIIFF as one of the top five New England film festivals. And, it was cited in Moviemaker Magazine as one of the “Top 25 Festivals Worth the Entry Fee.”

The 2012 Flickers: Rhode Island International Film Festival will be dedicated to the memories of RIIFF Lifetime Achievement Award winner (2009), acting legend Ernest Borgnine and Bruce W. Putney (1925 to 2012) the father of FLICKERS board member Duncan B.Putney. Bruce was a US Navy fighter pilot and R.C.A.F. pilot during WW2. He was the inspiration for the short film “HALF PINT,” written and directed by his son.

ABOUT THE FLICKERS ARTS COLLABORATIVE:
Flickers’ mission goes way beyond the Festival. Flickers works to maximize the effect that a limited number of resources can generate and help to create participation and collaboration within the local community. It is committed to innovation and allowing people from any background, regardless of socioeconomic status, to experience the medium of film. Flickers partners with arts organizations, colleges, universities, RI public schools, and leaders of community development. Its various programs are designed to benefit the larger community.

Flickers’ Community Outreach Program has RIFF donate tickets for opening night and Festival events to the 70+ non-profits it partners with annually. In 2011, that translated to over 1,200 tickets throughout the Festival. College film programs are also provided with tickets, passes and scholarships for their students. Organizations may freely sell tickets for their own use, benefitting the larger community, or donate them to new audiences or the employee/staff of each respective agency. Through the Adopt a Film Program non-profit agencies can attend film screenings that are in line with the organization’s specific mission during the festival free of charge. This benefits the organization and allows the audience to connect with non-profit groups, and those involved with the filmmaking process. Flickers believes that these collaborative efforts help to promote cultural understanding and spur philanthropy in the larger community.

Flickers offers Youth Mentorship Opportunities where young people can intern and hold leadership positions at RIFF throughout the year and experience marketing, planning and running the festival all the while gaining an in-depth perspective on the festival itself. Three years ago, Flickers introduced the RIFF Youth Film Jury Program, which has successfully allowed young scholars from the region to discover the Festival, meet filmmakers and be actual participants in the awards selection.

Another successful program created by Flickers is The 7 Day PSA Competition. This community outreach competition challenges filmmakers to use their creative skills and to donate their time and talent for a worthy cause. Teams compete by writing, shooting and editing TV public service announcements for one of three pre-selected local non-profits who provide needed services to the local community, but could not afford to pay to have a broadcast quality PSA produced. The time frame for the work to be organized, shot and completed is 7 days. Local media sponsors in each region agree to air the winning PSAs for one year, one spot per non-profit. In 2011, three such competitions took place: Rhode Island, Maine and Boston. As part of its support for participating filmmakers, Flickers submitted the top winner from each competition for regional Emmy consideration. Last year all three submissions received Emmy nominations. This year, the top winner from the Boston competition, “My Life, My Choice” took home the Emmy. The PSA was directed, shot and edited by Chuck Green, Brian Galford and Michael Yip members of the New England Media Coalition.

The 7DayPSA Competition was created by Duncan Putney, actor/author /director and a member of the RIFF Advisory Board.

Advance ticket sales for screenings and special events are available through the RIFF website (www.RIFilmFest.org). Student, group, and senior discounts are also available, but only in advance.
